THAT IDIOTIC FRIEND

MOST OF US HAVE HAD EXPERI-ENCE WITH HIM.

Worst of It All Is That the Surge of Hate in One's Heart Has to Be Suppressed, Though at Times It Almost Chokes.

Most of the annoyances of life are caused by friends. It doesn't annoy you when your enemy tries to get you in bad. You don't expect anything rise from him. It's his regular bustness. You'd feel that he was a pretty measly sort of an enemy if he didn't try to puncture one of your tires! Then you can think and speak about him as a leprous horned toad. But can't think or speak about s triend that way when he gets under your skin. He's your friend! That's all there is to it—he did it, and he's a feeble-minded antenter, but he's still your friend!

Only a dear friend would greet you when you're feeling peculiarly gay and fit with, "Sa.a.ay! What's the trouble? You look positively green, old norse! Don't you feel well? You ught to take a long rest, that's right; I don't like that hollow-eyed look of yours; perhaps it's your heart."

Or, Come up behind you when you are tooking calmly at some old prints in a window on the avenue and forgetting there are such things in the world as idiotic friends, and let his enormous flat nine pound hand down on you be tween your shoulders so that you think for the moment that a prehis-toric mule with hoofs on him the size of the rubbish receptacles on the corners has planted them in the interior of your lungs! Only a friend could inspire such diabolical and streaming hatred that rises up in the wreck of your breast, when you manage to turn and see what hit you!

If you happen to ask certain friends to go motoring several times and have them to dinner quite often and you let two or three Sundays go by without asking them, it is only dear friends who would, on meeting you next time, greet you with a Hudson Bay expres-sion and a bucket of sarcasm!

Speaking of the sex that is responsible for all the poets, who but a true and tried friend would put over to her friend, "Oh, Camille, you were such a pretty girl, as a young girl, and you did have the loveliest clothes!"— James Montgomery Flagg, in the American Magazine.

They are Leslie and Hallie Wood-cock, twenty years old, from South Carolina. At enlistment they were promised they would not be placed in separate companies.

In reading the list of those detailed for various police duties in the morning the officers merely mention the name of Woodcock. They realize that one blond twin will report for duty. Further investigation is useless. One or two of the men have discovered a small piece has been chipped from a front tooth of one of the twins. "That would be a hot one," observed an old sergeant. "Who goes there— Woodcock? Halt and uncover tooth." —Philadelphia (Pa.) Dispatch to New York Herald.

Soul of the Samural.

The beautiful Japanese sword which has been presented to King Albert by the famous swordsmith, Kakagawa Shichlyemon no-jo Yukikane, who died in the year of the great armada. To the collector it is the wonderful adornments of the hilt, guard and scabbard of the Japanese awords which appeal. But to the connoisseur it is the blade itself. For the Japanese swords excelled the finest products of Damascus or Tole-do, and the great smiths were a hereditary caste, who forged their blades with secret and immemorial religious rites. This blade was the "living soul of the samurai." The finest blades were made of soft magnetic iron, with a hard steel edge, which was tempered in cold water while the softer backing was surrounded with fire clay.

To Speak Japanese.

Strange as it may seem, it is nevertheless a fact (which was admitted in the house of commons a short time ago) that there is not a single officer in the British army who understands the Japanese language!

Some time ago one of the assistant directors of military operations on the staff of the army council compiled a work on strategy, and the Japanese war office authorities perceiving its value, translated the work, and, as is usual in such cases, forwarded the British author some copies of the translation.

The author, not knowing the language, turned over the leaves of the army list, and found that not a single officer in the British army was qualifield to act as interpreter in the language of its allies.

Prof. Mumford of Muskogee, has been a visitor of our city for the past few days, while here he was success-ful in resurrecting the Knights of Tabor

The past Sunday was gala day for the Grand United Order of Odd Fel-iows, as on that day they celebrated their annual thanksgiving day. This their annual thanksgiving day. This order is very strong here and they were united when coming to make this day a success.

They gathered at the hall about moon time and spread a feast consisting of the good things mentioned in Tunbar's Party" and a few more, and all the public was invited. After this repast why the Colonel Napier lined his invitacible host and drillied for about an hourt. Then the in-ier lined his invincible host and drilled for about an hourt. Then the inmates of the Household of Ruth joined them and they advanced to the M.

E. church, and after the ritualistic ceremonies, Dr. T. W. Kidd, preached the annual thanksgiving sermon. Well did this servant of God delve into the mysteries of this order, yet he directed every soul to the Throne of Grace.
